Fandom... stuck?

A new movement has been sweeping across Tumblr, a little thing known as "Fandomstuck". What with the rising popularity of Homestuck, other fandoms want a little piece of the pie, and now fandoms of all varieties are joining in on the fun by drawing their characters in the style of Homestuck and putting them in similar situations as to that of the web comic. And, yes, the Once-ler/Lorax fandom has joined in on this. Keep a sharp eye and you might notice such art on your dash!

~ Shaken, Not Stirred ~

The camp may have finally left the dreary hardware store, and 72 will hopefully be a better leader than Entre, but despite the change of pace... tension only continues to rise, if not inside the group itself then certainly in the outskirts.

Entre and Rocky seem to be bonding rather nicely lately. The two camp members very recently went out on a zombie raid as the group stopped by a shopping mall to stock up on items. During the duel-out, however, Entre was very nearly bitten by a zombie that was considerably more mutant than the others. Sporting spikes and a huge build, Entre would have been done for had Rocky not come into play. Swag, meanwhile, has been working on fixing up an RV that he found, so far with little success. Those who follow his blog will notice that a rather depressing change has come over the once upbeat Once-ler. This likely has something to do with the disappearance of Prisma, who may very well have died in some way. It is with greater regret that Ted is to blame somehow, but those are questions that have yet to be answered. Ted, 72, and Beanpole came upon two infected in a store, a mother and a child, whom 72 quickly dispatched; both the Lorax and Swag have had more heart-to-heart talks with Entre; Ted and Beanpole made paper flowers (BP made his for a rather pleasantly surprised Audrey); and a recent bought of coughs has come upon not only Ted, but on Beanpole, Entre, and possibly others as well. What is to be made of these coughs, and why are strange, mutant zombies suddenly showing up? Is the disease spreading in ways that even Entre can't explain? The fandom waits on tenterhooks, as always, to see what will happen next. •
